

From Extreme Nervousness.

MANY LANDS
Have Been Visited By "Globe Trotter" Phelps.

Started on his long journey in a paper suit and arrived at the CLIMAX office on last Thursday after escaping with his life from Winchester.

The history of Mr. Phelps' trip is an interesting one, and is briefly summarized by the Portsmouth, Ohio, Daily News.

He made a wager with a certain New York club that he would start around the world in three years. The stakes were $5,000. During the trip he was to accumulate $50,000 and the conditions of the wager were that he must neither sail, borrow nor beg, and not accept any money without giving something in return for it. He was to ride 12,000 miles in his own harness, with the privilege of traveling on the cars or boats, and he was to keep a diary of his trip.

Money-making was his first task. The first job offered was the blanketing of a pair of boots for a member of the club, for which he received $1. He then accepted one of three pennies he held in his hand when he landed in New York for $1, waited table in a restaurant for his dinner and received $1 extra. He then accepted the position of waiter in one of the big hotels, for which he received $1.

He left New York for Liverpool, England, working his way on the steamer, and then to various cities in Europe, and crossed Dover Strait for Calcutta, from which point he started on his journey for Paris, covering a distance of 225 miles in 17 hours, stopping one hour on the way. In Paris he worked in the Bois de Boulogne, and then to the city of France, going from there to Spain, thence through Italy, Greece, Turkey, Austria, Hungary, Switzerland, Germany, Belgium, Russia, Afghanistan, Persia, India, China, Japan, Australia, Honolulu and back to San Francisco and to California.

He has yet to visit Havana, Cuba, and the specified cities in South America, from which point he started on his journey for Mexico, Guatemala and other points in Central America, having yet eight months in which to complete his trip. There is still $10,000 miles to go to be covered on his tour in the United States, outside of that he can choose his own method of travel. His average on the wheel in this country has been about 75 miles a day, but in Europe he made an average of 125 miles.

He has had all kinds of experiences. One of the greatest was his coming upon a pack of wild dogs in India, who he hunted by the aid of a native hunter. He also had a narrow escape on the great wall of China, and saw the Rhine, the Danube, the Rhodope, the Caucasus, the Nile, the Huang Ho river, and rode on the electric railway at Jerusalem, Hong Kong and Canton.

Mr. Phelps is a gentleman of pleasant address, and if he has not in reality visited all the lands he came to have seen, he at least knows enough about them to talk very intelligently. He has accumulated $5,000 on his trip, and has already started $2,000. Just what benefit is conferred on the world by such pilgrimages has not been accurately figured out, but the pilgrim in the end seems to be deriving pleasure and profit from the trip.

He sells perfumes, photographs and books of travel.
